PARKER APPEALS TO EL PASOANS TO

Laws Be Secured for Texas—Cities Importance of the Industry.

Appealing to the chamber of commerce to do something to mollify senator Balley's opposition to the proposed national mining bureau which will receive the attention of congress this year, Morris B. Parker made a strong talk before the business men's luncheon club at noon today for a mining bureau of national scope, similar to the agriculture department, and also for modified min-ing laws in file state of Texas.

Taking the London stock exchange as the pendulum of the world's business the speaker sold that the Englishman seeking investment in Mexico was an indiration of prosperity ahead and that El Paso, where every kind of business was directly or indirectly connected with the mining industry, was to receive its share of this prosperity.

Mining and Banking. Mr. Parker compared the mining Inshowing how that, although mining was synonymous with speculation the very basis of banking, the government bonds vere also largely affected in their value by speculation and that the Declaration of Independence was a speculation, the result of which no one knew at the time He explained the three phases of the mining industry, the discovery, development and operation, showing how all prospects were not mines and the work of development was the bringing of the mines to the men of money and the money to the mines. "Undue speculation is based upon stupfaity and over enthusiasm," he said, and the remedy is the reliable mining broker as a protection from these socalled experts and their operations."

Its Importance. Stating that 70 percent of the busi- P. Darwin, of San Francisco

Urges That Modified Mining ness of the London stock exchange is in mining speculation and that the greater part of the income of many of the millionaires of this country was from mining investments, Mr. Parker showed the relative importance of the mining business to that of agriculture and other industries.

"The dividends paid on gold and silver mines is greater than the dividends paid by all the banks of the country," "The dividends paid on copper investments is greater than that paid on all railroad investments. Fifty-two percent of the freight handled by the railroads consists of ores and things directly connected with the mining and treatment of ores."

In closing Mr. Parker made an appeal in the form of a suggestion to the chamber of commerce to assist in getting the bureau of mines measure, which is expected to come before congress this year, passed, and also to mollify senator Bailey's opposition to this measure. He also reviewed the state mining laws of Texas and showed how they were bad for the prospector.

"The interests of El Paso are largely centered in mining," Mr. Parker said in conclusion. "The interests of El Paso should and would receive the united effort of the city to obtain a national mining bureau and also favorable legislation for the mining industry upon which is based the present and future prosperity of the city."

Work for Reforms. At the close of Mr. Parker's talk, president D. M. Payne, of the chamber of commerce, outlined briefly what had been done in the direction of getting a better state mining law and asked for the assistance of Mr. Parker and the nembers of his profession in a further fight for these reforms.

The outoftown guests at the luncheon were: W. H. Bucher, of Hillsboro, N. M.; D. E. Savage, of Detroit, Mich.; R. L. Hearon, traffic manager of the Colorado and Wyoming ratiroad, and J.

GIRL WEDS MAN WHO TRIED TO END LIFE FOR HER, JUST AS HE DIES

Romance is not dead. Here is a true, love story to prove it;

Not long ago Elpidio Salomo, who plays the cornet at a Juarez dance hall, saw and fell in love with Beatrice Moffet, who danced often on the blg floor. He wooed, but could not win her, So, about 15 days ago the young Mex can became very dramatic. He found the young woman , who is half of the Latin blood, and in her presence, shot himself. But he did not die.

But the wound was too near the fatal spot-the spot which had been first wounded by the eyes of the girl. Wednesday morning a marriage li-cense was issued at the county clerk's
